BIOGRAPHY

Siji Olunuga is a Music composer and Audio Engineer with experience in writing original music for Film and Television. His unique style of writing is mainly classical music influenced with his recent works gearing towards a more contemporary sound.

Growing up in a family of musicians meant Siji's exposure to music began at a very young age. He began playing the piano at the age of 5 and ever since, has worked towards extending his knowledge of music beyond the norm.

Siji's career as a composer began right after his first degree at the University of Leeds. He worked full time as an Audio Engineer and Music Composer at a production company, where he gained vast knowledge about the procedures involved in developing an idea from scratch pre-production, to perfecting it post-production.

With his original soundtracks for film and television, Siji has shown his versatility as a composer. Drawing from his classical music background and combining that with knowledge gained from his time studying music at Selkirk College, Siji Olunuga is a contemporary music composer with the ability to write in a variety of styles.
